About Us

The prison population is growing, and sentences are getting longer than ever.

In the 30 years since The Hardman Trust formed, the prison population has increased by 93%. This number will continue to rise, with 20,000 new prison places being built in the next two years. As prisons fill up, sentences are getting longer. We now have some of the longest in Europe, with four times as many people sentenced to 20 years than a decade ago. This is happening against a backdrop of low prison staffing and limited funding within a cost of living crisis: There are more people in prison, doing longer sentences, with fewer resources to support them.

The Hardman Trust is the only charity in England, Wales and Scotland focusing on the unique needs of people on long term sentences.

People facing decades of prison time often completely lose connection with their family and friends on the outside. Depending on the prison, there may be limited access to rehabilitative programmes and educational courses until later in the sentence. It can be hard to maintain hope, and direction, or create meaningful plans for the future.

People leaving prison after 10 years will have different needs to those leaving after 10 months. The world has changed – there are different habits and new social norms. Prices have gone up, technology has evolved, neighbourhoods look different, and the workplace has changed. It takes time to adjust.

Over half of those leaving prison each year face homelessness, and this risk increases for those that struggle to find work, have lost family connections, or are struggling with their physical or mental health. Most are keen to work but face multiple barriers: a skillset that no longer matches the job market, a long gap in the CV, a lack of confidence, and stigma related to the offence. Others will be seeking work for the first time, having been in prison since childhood.

The Role

The Hardman Trust is at an exciting point in its development as it celebrates the arrival of its new team, the realisation of its first ever strategy and looks forward to the next phase of its journey.

Our recently successful applications to both the Lottery (Reaching Communities) and the City Bridge Trust means we will continue to be part-funded by them until 2027. Deeply rooted in the criminal justice sector, we plan to develop further our programme of support for those on long sentences both within and, we hope, beyond prison too; we aim to extend the reach and deepen the impact of our support and grants; and attract new partnerships with funders and like-minded third sector organisations. We have recently completed a merger with another charity and are open to further such mergers in the future.

- The CEO will work closely with the Senior Leadership Team and be responsible for overseeing all aspects of the charity's programmes as delivered by the relevant team members.
- The CEO line-manages the Head of Service Delivery (HSD), Senior Fundraising Officer and Finance Manager while the HSD line-manages all the other staff [see attached staff structure diagram and brief descriptions of staff roles].
